74	1994 Chateau Rayas (1) A tough, intense wine packed with cedar and blackberry, this is all power and no finesse. Time will tell if it comes around--as some collectors believe it will--to deliver an outstanding package one day. Best from 2003 through 2015. Wine Spectator 88/100 1995 Chateau de Fonsalette Reserve (2) Very fruity, with chocolate, toast, currant and cherry character. Firm and chewy tannins make for a slightly bitter finish now, but there is enough stuffing here to suggest it should smooth out with cellaring. Best from 2005 through 2010. Wine Spectator 88/100

75	1999 Chateau Rayas Rustic red, with plenty of plum and cherry jam, as well as wild mushroom and tea leaf character. Medium-bodied, it lacks a bit of finesse, but delivers personality with its leather and wet earth notes.
